STANDS AND STREETS JAMMED

Dignitaries From Many Lands Join With Noted Persons in and Out of Official Life in Cheering New President—Essex Troop of New Jersey Guard of Honor for Taft's Successor, Culver Black Horse Troop of Indiana Acts for Marshall.

Washington, March 4.—The great deed is done, and Woodrow Wilson is president of the United States. Followed by the presidential salute of 101 guns and the cheering of the greatest throng ever gathered in Washington, he was sworn in today shortly after noon. The inaugural address which followed was one of the shortest on record, but the parade was not. Despite the demand for democratic simplicity, this pageant was one of the longest and most imposing that ever marched in honor of a new occupant of the White House.

At about half past 10 Mr. Wilson was waited on at the Shoreham by members of the congressional committee and escorted to the White

VICE PRESIDENT MARSHALL.

House, where he was greeted by President Taft, and shortly thereafter the president and president-elect were entered a carriage for the trip to the Capitol. Mr. Taft seated upon the right hand and Mr. Wilson on the left. The president-elect had as a guard of honor the Essex troop of Newark, N. J.

Marshall Also Had Escort.

Vice President Marshall, who had also been escorted from the Shoreham to the White House, followed in another carriage. Because of the vacancy in the office prior to his qualifying he rode with members of the committee, the event being a sad reminder to many of the death of Vice President Sherman. Mr. Marshall's guard of honor was the Culver Black Horse troop of Indiana. Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Marshall did not ride in the inaugural procession, but the first lady of the land and her three charming daughters and the wife of the vice president were escorted to the Capitol by a special military aid.

Arrived at the Capitol building, President Taft and Mr. Wilson proceeded at once to the president's room, where Mr. Taft bled himself during the brief remainder of his term by signing bills passed in the last hours of congress. Mr. Marshall repaired to the vice president's room to await the moment of taking the oath of office. Meanwhile the senate chamber presented an animated scene, for today it held not only the members of the highest legislative body in the land, but the supreme court of the United States, the diplomatic corps, members of the house of representatives, distinguished officials of the government and a gallery brilliant with the presence of the beauty and distinction of the land.

An Imposing Procession.

The ancient ceremony of turning back the clock having been attended to in due form, at exactly 12 by this amended timepiece, appeared the president and president-elect of the United States escorted by the honorable committee to the chief seats in front of the presiding officer's desk. Thomas R. Marshall was then sworn in by the president pro tem, of the senate, after which there was prayer by the chaplain, the new vice president delivered a brief inaugural address and gave the oath to the new members of the senate, and the stately procession was ready to move to the temporary stand built over the east portico of the Capitol.

Headed by the sergeant-at-arms of the senate and the sergeant-at-arms of the house, followed by the marshal of the District of Columbia, the procession moved in the following order: Chief Justice White and the eight associate justices of the United States supreme court, the committee on arrangements, the president and president-elect, the ambassadors and ministers from foreign nations in all their regalia of office, the vice president and former vice presidents, the president pro tem, of the senate, senators and former senators, the speaker and clerk of the house, retiring members and members-elect of the house, heads of executive departments of the government, governors of states and territories, Admiral Dewey, head of the navy; Major General Leonard Wood, head of the army; officers of the army and navy who have received the thanks of congress and all other persons who have been admitted to the floor of the senate, followed by the occupants of the senate gallery headed by members of the diplomatic corps.

Administering the Oath.

Arrived at the temporary stand where hundreds of people were already seated and tens of thousands more were banded in front of the stand, the high dignitaries took the places allotted to them and prepared to solemnize the chief event of the day.

For the first time Chief Justice Edward D. White administered the oath, his predecessor, Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller, having officiated at the last six public inaugurations. In a firm voice the president-elect repeated after the venerable chief justice the oath, bowing to kiss the Bible at its close. The boom of cannon and the cheers of the mighty concourse of people announced the fact that a new president of the United States had been inducted into office and that William Howard Taft was now a private citizen.

The inaugural address was delivered in the easy manner and full voice for which President Wilson is already famous, but the crowd was so enormous that only those nearest the platform could hear. Many complimentary references were made to the lofty tone of the address. In its brevity, pithiness and high moral plane it is likened to the inaugural address of Lincoln.

In the journey back to the White House President Wilson and Mr. Taft exchanged places in the first carriage, the new president now on the right hand and the ex-president on the left. Wilson was cheered almost continuously throughout the mile of Pennsylvania avenue extending between the Capitol and the treasury building. At the White House luncheon was served to the presidential and vice presidential parties. Mr. Taft, whose treatment of his successor throughout the day has been the soul of courtesy and good feeling, excused himself soon after the luncheon to take the train for Augusta, Ga., where he will rest for several weeks before moving to his new home in New Haven, where he is to be Kent professor of law at Yale.

The reviewing stand in front of the White House, to which the presidential party then repaired, seats about 1,500 persons and is crowded with friends and relatives of the new president and vice president.

Gigantic Parade Under Way.

The gigantic parade is now under way. The first division, led by the famous Marine band, is already passing the court of honor. As this band approached the president's stand it broke out in the strains of "Hail to the Chief" amid the cheering of the assembled thousands. The first parade division consists of some of the finest marching regiments of the United States army and navy and the West Point and Annapolis cadets, perhaps the best drilled body of young men in the world.

The scene along Pennsylvania avenue is one never to be forgotten. Practically every inch of space on both sides of the great thoroughfare is occupied. The temporary stands, the sidewalks, the cross streets back for a long distance, the windows of every building along the route and even the trees and house-tops are alive with humanity. The decorations, not only of this street but of the whole line of march and in a lesser degree of the entire city, have never been more effective. Great arches and festoons span the avenue at frequent intervals. These when lighted at night will make of Pennsylvania avenue a veritable fairyland, and with the garlands of green and white and the display of the national colors the effect will be like that of day.

Quarter of Million Visitors.

By conservative estimates there are a quarter of a million visitors in Washington today and almost an equal number of the residents of the city who have also turned out to see the show.

Following the regular army and navy and cadet division comes the national guard from the various states, headed in many instances by the governor and his staff. There are more than 20,000 marchers in this division alone. The entire national guard of New Jersey is out in honor of the first Jerseyman to become president of the United States. Virginia, the new president's birthplace, and Georgia, the native state of Mrs. Wilson, are also represented by thousands of troops, while Pennsylvania, New York, Maryland and other nearby states swell the great marching columns.

Veterans in Line.

The third division is made up of the Grand Army of the Republic, Spanish War Veterans and other patriotic organizations. The old soldiers, who hold an honored place in every inaugural procession, are growing fewer each year.

The last division consists of political and civic organizations. In it are marching clubs from all parts of the country.

THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS

President Wilson Briefly Outlines Changes Needed.

Washington, March 4.—President Wilson's inaugural address was comparatively brief. He referred to the greatness of the nation and the magnitude of our industries, but declared we have not hitherto stopped thoughtfully enough to count the human cost, the cost of lives snuffed out, of energies overtaxed and broken, the fearful physical and spiritual cost to the men and women and children upon whom the dead weight and burden of it all has fallen pitilessly the years through.

Speaking of existing conditions that, in his opinion, should be changed, President Wilson included the following as the chief items:

A tariff which cuts us off from our proper part in the commerce of the world, violates the just principles of taxation and makes the government a facile instrument in the hands of private interests; a banking and currency system based upon the necessity of the government to sell its bonds fifty years ago and perfectly adapted to concentrating cash and restricting credits; an industrial system which, take it on all sides, financial as well as administrative, holds capital in leading strings, restricts the liberties and limits the opportunities of labor and exploits without renewing or conserving the natural resources of the country; a body of agricultural activities never yet given the efficiency of great business undertakings or served as it should be through the instrumentality of science taken directly to the farm or afforded the facilities of credit best suited to its practical needs; watercourses undeveloped, waste places unreclaimed, forests untended, fast disappearing without prospect of renewal.

PROGRESSIVES WIN IN MAINE

Elect Mayor and Four Out of Five Aldermen in Auburn.

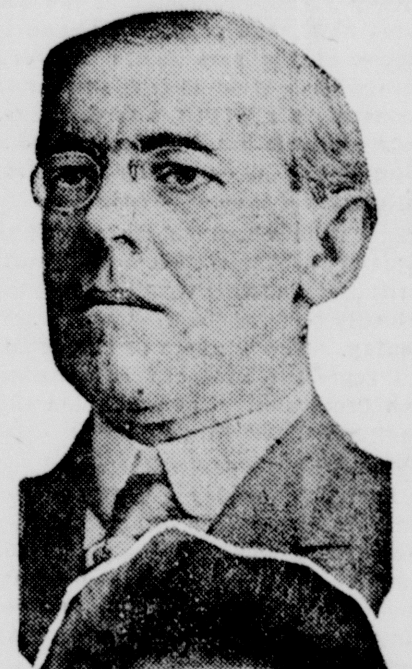

Portland, Me., March 4.—The Progressive party won its first important success in the municipal elections in Maine by electing A. W. Fowles mayor of Auburn with four out of five aldermen. The city last year was Republican. In Lewiston the Progressives won two out of seven aldermen. Elections were held in ten cities, Democrats winning six mayoralties. Republicans carried Eastport, which was Democratic last year.

British Rule Provides Summary Fate For Intruders Over Ports.

The aerial navigation bill in England has received the royal assent, and it became operative immediately. Foreign airships now cross England at their peril unless their pilots declare the objects of their journey. Should pilots pass over forts, royal dockyards or arsenals they are liable to be shot at and killed.

The terms of the new act will be communicated to foreign governments as well as the regulations to be made by the war office. Air craft passing prohibited places will be warned by smoke signals before they are fired at. Rockets or flashlights will be used at night. Experiments are in progress to find the best guns for use on and against air craft.

WILL WILSON BE BOSS? IS QUESTION

Many Persons Prophecy Bryan Influence.

THINK HE NEEDS MAN BEHIND

Yet as Governor He Ran His Office as He Chose, Regardless of Would Be Advisers, and It Is Expected Maybe New President Will Follow Same Self Reliance in White House.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, March 4.—[Special.]—"Who's going to be president?" What a silly question! Well, there is still a deal of speculation everywhere as to whether Woodrow Wilson will be the boss or some one whom he selects for his adviser. For several months, while various persons have been most obliging and very busy helping Governor Wilson choose a cabinet, these and others have been telling how William J. Bryan would dominate the Wilson administration; also pointing out what other influences would shape the policies of the first Democratic administration in twenty years.

And when things seemed to be fairly well fixed in the minds of those who must have a finger in the administration pie along comes a report which says that Bryan can't arrange the cabinet and therefore won't play in the game. And then began another series of questions as to who is going to be the big man behind Wilson. Somehow the impression seems to have gained ground that the new president must have a "big man behind him."

It May Be Wilson.

Stop! Look! Listen! Maybe Wilson will run his own administration, just as he has run other things which have come under his charge. Now, that's really worth thinking about. It has quite a lot of common sense behind it, for Woodrow Wilson has shown a capacity to do things in his own way and to go ahead with what he thought was right regardless of those who may have been instrumental in pushing him forward for preferment as governor. He may do the same thing as president. The man who has seemed such a political enigma to most of the politicians may prove as self-reliant as was Grover Cleveland.

How He Picked Barrett.

When Secretary Elihu Root was making his tour of South America he came across the isthmus at Panama and met John Barrett, then minister to Colombia. Barrett came home with him and talked about South America and other things, for Barrett can talk. Root learned more quickly, and it did not take him more than three days to find that he needed Barrett as head of the bureau of American republics.

He needed a man who could talk about the southern republics and talk to the representatives of those countries. He appointed Barrett, and the latter has been all that could be hoped. Barrett advised the bureau and the countries. He talked to people, and he wrote about the countries and their possibilities. He made it the big show. It has been a success, and Root is perfectly satisfied now that he picked the right man for the place.

Lodge in the Gallery.

"There's Lodge in the gallery," remarked an old timer in the senate, and he called attention to the fact as if it were something new. And that was the fact. The Massachusetts senator rarely, if ever before, had been seen in the gallery. He took a friend there and remained to point out some of the distinguished men on the floor who were his colleagues. To see other senators with friends in the gallery creates no surprise. It is the unusual that surprises.

Another Old Soldier.

A few days ago I told how I went wrong once in saying that no more old soldiers of the civil war would be elected to the senate. I named four men who had since been elected. And now Nathan Goff has been elected from West Virginia for six years. He is a veteran of the civil war. When it comes to making predictions about senatorial elections there are always several guesses, and it's better not to be too positive.

They Like Newlands.

One day in the senate, when Senator Newlands was making a very long speech and the senate was nodding over the delay of the appropriation bill pending, one senator remarked, "Sometimes I am almost sorry that Nevada was ever admitted as a state." But at the same time the senator from Nevada is well liked. Besides, he generally says something when he takes the floor, and he always knows what he is talking about.

Two Lotteries Will Go.

Without desks and seats in the house

HAS LARGE PLUM TREE TO SHAKE

there will be no lottery for the location of members as heretofore. That was always an interesting occasion in the house. In the senate there will not be a lottery for many years to come, as there is no possibility of the admission of another state in the next generation. The lottery in the senate was of constitutional authority and related to the drawing for long and short terms when senators from a new state were admitted. Both lotteries will now pass into history.

WYOMING IN AN ACCIDENT

New Battleship Damaged, but No One Is Injured.

Washington, March 4.—Rear Admiral Badger, in command of the Atlantic fleet, reported that the new battleship Wyoming had met with a slight accident.

During target practice a few days ago the cap square on the trunion block of one of the big forward turret guns was split. No one was injured and in spite of the damage to the gun it was said it could have been fired again without the least danger.

CALLS THAW STILL INSANE

Matteawan Superintendent's Affidavit So States.

Albany, N. Y., March 4.—Harry K. Thaw, slayer of Stanford White, still is of unsound mind and his release from the Matteawan asylum would be dangerous to the public peace and safety, according to an affidavit made to Attorney General Carmody by Dr. Roy L. Leak, acting superintendent of the hospital.

The affidavit will be used as the state's return to the writ of habeas corpus obtained last Saturday directing the state to produce Thaw before Justice Giegerich in New York Thursday and show cause why Thaw should not be given his freedom.

JOHN BURNS AVOIDS TROUBLE

Has All Women Leave Hall in Which He Is Speaking.

London, March 4.—After several suffragettes had been ejected from a meeting at Battersea at which John Burns, president of the local government board, was speaking he requested all women to leave the hall. Mr. Burns announced several days ago that in his present campaign in behalf of the progressive candidates for the London county council he was going to do his best to break down "tyranny of organized blackguardism."

LOEB RESIGNS HIS PLACE

Will Quit Federal Service to Enter Guggenheim's Service.

New York, March 4.—The resignation of William Loeb, Jr., collector of the port of New York, has been sent to Washington, it was announced. Mr. Loeb's withdrawal from office was forecasted recently.

A position as managing director of the Guggenheim companies, with which he already is associated as a director, has been created for him.

Woodrow Wilson, as president, will act upon the resignation.

WOULD BREED STRIPED RATS.

Biologist to Use Burbank Method on Rodents and Birds.

Applying to a colony of rats the principle used with such marvelous success by Luther Burbank in various forms of plant life, George B. Culver, head of the biological department of the Los Angeles high school, expects to produce a breed of varicolored rats with zebra stripes.

Culver has obtained twelve pure white and an equal number of pure brown rats. He has chosen each lot from families whose ancestry has never been crossed marked in any particular.

Culver also intends to apply the Burbank principle to domestic canaries and wild finches in the hope of producing a bird of wonderful voice and startling as to color.

THIRTY POISONED BY BREAD

Cottonseed Oil Shipped in Kerosene Barrels Used in Loaves.

Atlantic City, N. J., March 4.—When William Gross Muller, a baker, was notified that one of his patrons who became violently ill from eating bread baked with the cottonseed oil in making 2,800 loaves of bread and 1,000 pies was contaminated. He immediately dispatched his drivers over the routes to retrieve the goods.

Thirty of the patrons required the services of physicians.

President Wilson Will Make Many Appointments.

TAFT'S NOMINATIONS FAIL

Action of Senate in Refusing to Confirm Over Fourteen Hundred Names Submitted to That Body by Retiring Chief Executive Imposes Large Task Upon His Successor.

Washington, March 4.—To President Wilson will fall the task of filling more than 1,400 places made vacant by the refusal of the senate to confirm appointments by President Taft since Dec. 2. The places that became vacant with the adjournment of congress include practically all appointments outside of the diplomatic service, the army, navy, marine corps and allied services.

Many important positions are involved in the list. Among them are those of Edgar E. Clark, interstate commerce commissioner; Dr. C. P. Neill, commissioner of labor; the three commissioners of the District of Columbia; the nine members of the new commission on industrial relations; Christian S. Pearce, to be assistant treasurer of the United States; W. W. Warwick, to be assistant comptroller of the treasury; Walter F. Frear, governor of Hawaii; Ernest A. Mott-Smith, secretary of Hawaii, and the executive council of Porto Rico.

Federal attorneys in five districts, United States marshals in six districts, more than fifty consular appointments and many collectors of customs, surveyors of customs and registers and receivers of land offices also failed of confirmation.

The largest list of vacancies comes from the list of postmasters. While President Taft sent in more than 1,350 postoffice appointments less than a dozen of them were confirmed.

TROOPS FIRE ON MEXICANS

Mistake Wood Gatherers for Soldiers Crossing Line.

Douglas, Ariz., March 4.—There was some firing near the line caused by an attempt of the negro troopers to intercept what was supposed to be a detachment of Mexican troops crossing the line. It proved to be a party of Mexicans gathering firewood with pack animals. No one was wounded.

Colonel Guilfoyle sent to Washington a supplementary report of the battle of Sunday. It is said that it contains a copy of a message found in which there was a plan outlined for a union of the rebels on the Mexican side with those on the American side. It is said the plot was to attack Douglas and Agua Prieta at the same time. The message is said to have contained violent anti-American statements.

PASSES THIRTY-FIVE BILLS

Minnesota House Approves Number of Measures.

St. Paul, March 4.—The house passed thirty-five bills, nine of which were senate bills and may now become laws. Among the important measures passed were the Lundeen presidential primary bill, the Bjornson bill providing publication of legal matter in all newspapers of the state, the Spooner convict labor bill, the Sanborn county board road bill and the Denegre senate bill allowing religious societies to merge. The Harrison-Volmer joint resolution memorializing congress in favor of a Twin City-Twin Ports canal also was passed. Action will be taken toward obtaining similar legislation by the Wisconsin legislature.

GRADUATES HONOR WILSON

Princeton Men Indulge in Demonstration at Smoker.

Washington, March 4.—President Wilson was given a Princeton welcome to the national capital, a welcome that brought reminiscences of his many years as president of Princeton university. The occasion was a smoker at which graduates from all parts of the country gathered.

For an hour the president-elect was the center of a wild demonstration of cheers and songs. The enthusiasm of it all moved him so deeply that he spoke for a few minutes, expressing his thanks for the confidence that the Princeton alumni had reposed in him.

A Dog and a Bull.

A certain Irish officer responsible for dog licenses had a system of discovering his victims. He knocked at the side door of every house, and if a dog barked he immediately demanded that the owner show his license. Every dog must have his day, however, and one day this collector reached the street with his lower garments nearly intact. "Bedad," he said, "crying the victorious ferrier through the railings, 'that's the sort of a dog I like to see out of me sight!'"

STOPS SCALP ITCH

Dandruff and Every Form of Scalp Disease Cured Quick by

Zemo

It is simply wonderful how Zemo goes after dandruff. You rub a little of it in with tips of the fingers. It gets right down into the glands, stimulates them, stops the itch, and makes the head feel fine. No, it isn't sticky! Zemo is a fine, clear, vanishing liquid. You don't have to even wash your hands after using Zemo. And what a wonder it is for eczema, rash, pimples and all skin afflictions. A 25-cent trial bottle at Johnson's Pharmacy is guaranteed to stop any skin irritation.

Zemo is prepared by E. W. Rose Medicine Co., St. Louis, Mo., and is regularly sold by druggists at $1 a bottle. But to prove what it will do at trifling expense, Zemo is now put up in 25-cent trial bottles.—Adv.

PROCEEDINGS IN BANKRUPTCY

In the District Court of the United States for the District of Minnesota, Fifth Division.
In the matter of Andrew Carlson, Bankrupt, in Bankruptcy.
To the Honorable F. M. Morris, Judge of the District Court of the United States for the District of Minnesota; Andrew Carlson, of Brainerd, in the county of Crow Wing, and State of Minnesota, in said district, respectfully represents that on the 20th day of January, last past, he was duly adjudged bankrupt under the acts of Congress relating to bankruptcy; that he has duly surrendered all his property and rights of property, and has fully complied with all the requirements of said acts and of the order of the Court touching his bankruptcy.

Wherefore, he prays that he may be decreed by the court to have a full discharge from all debts provable against his estate under said bankrupt acts, except such debts are excepted by law from such discharge.

Dated this 24th day of February, A. D. 1913.

INDIANS CAPTURE WM. LESLIE TAYLOR

Young Mining Engineer Taken Captive While Exploring Wilds of Venezuela

STATE DEPT. IS APPEALED TO

Taylor is a Nephew of P. W. Donovan of this City and is Well Known Here

P. W. Donovan received the following message last night: "Maracaibo, Venezuela, March 3.—Two mining engineers, Guy N. Borge of Duluth, Minn., and William Leslie Taylor were captured Saturday by wild Motilones Indians while making petroleum explorations near Lake Maracaibo. News was received here today through official sources. The American consul, John A. Ray, left at once for the Indian country."

The two young men mentioned in the above dispatch are both University of Minnesota graduates. Wm. Taylor is a nephew of P. W. Donovan, superintendent of the E. J. Longyear Exploration company, and was employed some time by his uncle and made his home with him.

Taylor and Borge were classmates at the university, graduating last spring. They were recommended by their professors to a New York firm, which was looking for two mining engineers to go to Venezuela to prospect for oil. The young men were placed in charge of the party, which consisted of two guides, a cook and some natives.

Borge and Taylor left Minnesota last Thanksgiving day and arrived in New York from which point they sailed for Venezuela, leaving for the interior about Christmas time.

Mr. Donovan said that explorers had penetrated the interior at other times and had no trouble and cannot account for the capture unless it is on account of a fight or feud between the coast Indians and the tribes of the interior.

Harry Donovan of New York city has taken up with the Venezuelan ambassador and the state department the reported capture of Mr. Donovan. Mr. Donovan has also joined him in an appeal from this point. Taylor's parents live at Dundas and Mr. Donovan went there last afternoon to confer with them.

CALLS ADAM AND EVE FAKES.

University Professor Stamps Biblical Incident as Fiction.

William Duncan McMillan of the University of Chicago astonished his class recently by whacking Adam and Eve as fakes.

"Biblical chroniclers arranged the story of Adam and Eve from folklore to explain the origin of man," said he. "There can be no doubt that Adam and Eve and their tempter, the serpent, never actually existed. The story cannot be considered anything but a myth, evolved by the ancients to account for the presence of humans upon earth. The universally credited theory of evolution smashes the one man and one woman story. There never was a first man or a first woman."

"If Adam and Eve lived in the garden of Eden 6,000 years ago and light travels at the rate of 186,000 miles per second, with our present day powerful microscopic lenses we should still be able to see them in Paradise."

DIRECTORS REGULAR MEETING

Club Rooms are Tendered to Boosters' Club For Their Regular Monthly Meetings

The regular meeting of the directors of the Commercial club was held on Monday evening, the entire board being present excepting two.

Business of a routine nature, the allowance of several bills, and the report of the secretary regarding the standing of members and the collection of dues, was transacted.

As a member of the river and navigation committee Dr. J. L. Camp informed the members that Duluth parties were preparing to place a boat on the river capable of carrying 40 people to play between Brainerd and Riverton, on Rabbit lake, the coming season. It is quite possible that two boats will be placed in commission if the quantity of freight and passengers will warrant. In this connection the matter of a dock at the landing was discussed, it being the opinion that a good landing place at that point in the shape of a dock to accommodate the river craft and the people would be an excellent thing.

The 6 o'clock dinner to be given at the club rooms on the evening of March 11th, the occasion of the visit of Mayor Wallace G. Nye, of Minneapolis, to the city, was discussed and the plans explained. The dinner will be served in the club rooms, and tickets are now being sold for that occasion, following which will be remarks by local speakers after which the address of the evening will be delivered by the guest of honor. The occasion bids fair to be very successful from several standpoints.

An invitation was extended the members of the Boosters' club to hold their regular meetings in the club rooms, the action on the matter being unanimous on the part of the board.

A motion was carried that boys, unaccompanied by their parents, should not be allowed the privilege of the club rooms.

Six new members were elected, W. W. Barron and Harry Levant, active, and John Wall, J. A. Peterson, Thomas Schulstad and J. R. Wiley, associate.

COUNCIL DECIDES ON CITY HALL SITE

Orders Purchase for $1500 of Three Lots Corner of South Fifth and Laurel Streets.

LIQUOR LICENSES ARE GRANTED

Payrolls and Bills Allowed—White Bros. Election Booths Ordered Bought at $50

The council met in regular session last night and all were present except Alderman Olson. The most important business transacted was the motion carried by a 6 to 3 vote to purchase for a city hall site at $1,500 the three lots on the northeast corner of South Fifth and Laurel streets, on one of which the Salvation Army hall is located, the property being more accurately described as lots 22, 23 and 24 of block 45 of the city of Brainerd.

It took considerable voting before the measure passed the council. Alderman Lagerquist brought up the city hall site matter, referring to the talk had about it at the last meeting of the council. Attorney George H. Gardner stated the title to the three lots was good and had the abstracts and deeds covering the property to show to the council, the city attorney having passed on the titles some time ago. Title in lots 24 and 23 vested in Martha G. Thompson and W. S. Conrad. Lot 22 is agreed to be conveyed to the city by warranty deed.

Alderman Henning moved to lay on the table for the balance of the life of the council the purchase of a city hall site. It was voted down 7 to 2. Alderman Henning and Anderson favoring the motion.

Alderman Dieckhaus moved to advertise for bids for a lot 75 by 140 feet in size, such property being covered by 90 day options, bids to be opened March 15 and the various sites offered to be placed on the ballots April 1 to be voted for at the regular spring election. The motion was voted down 6 to 3. Aldermen Dieckhaus, Henning and Anderson favoring the motion.

Alderman Lagerquist moved to purchase lots 22, 23 and 24 block 45. Alderman Henning moved to amend and have the question of the purchase of the lots deferred and submitted to a vote of the people. The amendment failed 6 to 3. Aldermen Dieckhaus, Henning and Anderson voting in favor of the motion.

On the original motion of Alderman Lagerquist the council voted to purchase the lots, the ballot standing 6 to 3. The ayes were Aldermen Elder, Fogelstrom, Purdy, Webb, Lagerquist and Rowley. The nays were Aldermen Dieckhaus, Henning and Anderson.

The White Brothers election booths were ordered purchased for $50. The purchasing committee was instructed to purchase the necessary dry wood needed at the hose houses for the balance of the winter. A closet was ordered constructed at the Southeast Brainerd hose house.

Liquor licenses were granted R. R. Wise and J. C. Holz and C. G. Rau and transfers from J. D. Armstrong to F. B. Winslow and H. E. Carlson to H. E. Carlson and Frank Bedard.

The report of the city clerk was accepted and placed on file:

The most important business transacted by the school board last night was the reelection of W. C. Cobb as superintendent of the city schools. Mr. Cobb has been most successful in his management of the schools of Brainerd and his work has given pupils, teachers and the school board the utmost satisfaction.

Routine work of the board included the allowance of a number of bills.

FEBRUARY REPORT ON CITY SCHOOLS

Supt. W. C. Cobb Writes of the Activities of the High School and Grade Scholars

ENROLLMENT IS 1,867 PUPILS

The Record of Teachers' Attendance, Miss Margaret Somers Heading the List

The Dispatch publishes herewith Supt. W. C. Cobb's February report on the high school and grade schools of the city. Mr. Cobb says:

During the month just closed a joint observance of Washington's and Lincoln's birthday was observed in all the schools on February 12, which exercises were well attended by parents and citizens considering the unfavorable day. The following ministers addressed the several schools with stirring patriotic addresses which were much appreciated and for which the schools extend their hearty thanks to the pastors: Rev. R. E. Cody addressed the Whittier school, Rev. Lowrie spoke at the Lincoln, Rev. Sheridan at the Washington, Rev. Satterlee and Rev. Boquist at the Harrison, Rev. Zabel and Rev. Campbell at the Lowell. The patriotic talks by these ministerial representatives were so well received that the principals of the several buildings are unanimous in their wish that they might be repeated oftener in our schools. School Board Members W. E. Erickson and Wm. Barron attended the exercises in their wards and gave short talks to the children.

The interest aroused by the high school debaters has been spreading into the grades. The eight grade at the Washington building have had several debates on current public questions and the eight grade at the Lowell have recently challenged them to a contest between the two buildings in the near future.

Prof. Howard of the State Agricultural school visited the schools today and gave wholesome talks to the upper grade pupils in the Washington and Harrison schools.

The teachers and pupils of the Whittier building are proud over their recent success in winning a prize picture in the Journal Junior contest in competitive composition. The boy whose composition won the prize for the Whittier building is John Downie of Miss Barrett's room. His success will be an incentive to others in the schools to try to do likewise.

Several of the pupils have had their essays published in the Journal Junior. While the upper grade girls in the several schools have been pursuing their weekly lesson in sewing, the boys, at a loss to know what to do with themselves, have under the direction of their teachers been experimenting with manual training with such facilities as could be secured from home, and from the building janitors. Although working at a great disadvantage in the absence of any regular equipment, yet with jack knife and saw, hammer and sandpaper a few planes and chisels many useful household articles have been turned out, some of which would do credit to a regular manual training department. All told perhaps a hundred or more paper knives, hat racks, necktie boxes, taboretts, etc., have been turned out. One boy finished a small stand which he sold to a man on his way home from school for $2.00 and immediately laid his plans for making another one. These efforts on the part of the pupils and their teachers probably mark the beginning of manual training in Brainerd schools just as the efforts of the high school girls and their teachers last year in cookery marked the beginning of the domestic economy department installed this year.

The fondness of children for initiative, for doing something is shown in the enterprise of several of the grade boys of the Whittier who have been publishing a small newspaper each week on a small hand press owned by the enterprising editor.

The Botany class of the high school have been taking up the study of agriculture since the middle of the year and are planning on some practical work for the spring along the line of school gardening. Arrangements have been made to secure a supply of seeds for this purpose through the courtesy of one of the local papers.

The Mechanical Drawing class has recently turned out some very creditable work.

FEMALE ANIMALS BRIGHTER.

Scientist Declares Sex Shows Superiority in Tests on Pups.

Professor E. H. Harper of the chair of biology of the Northwestern university at Chicago has been experimenting on the relative intelligence of the sexes in animals. He made his experiments on pups and kittens. He found the females were brighter, more intelligent, grasped ideas quicker than males. It was the same with kittens.

"The female in all trials displayed great quickness in grasping ideas," said the professor. "The female maintained her supremacy over her male companion in a rather militant manner, which is quite according to the ideas of sex supremacy. That the conditions revealed are illustrative in the case of men and women is not quite certain. But such a theory would find support in some quarters."

Cause of Eczema Now Explained

Eczema, Psoriasis and other skin troubles are caused by myriads of germs that work in the skin. Salves have been tried but have been proven worthless, for they only clog the pores and fail to remove the real cause of the disease.

These germs can be destroyed only by washing, and unless this is promptly done, they rapidly multiply, gnawing their way deep into the sensitive tissue. This is what causes that awful itch, and what causes a mere rash may grow worse and develop into a loathsome and torturing skin disease with its years of misery.

Don't take any chances! Destroy the germs at the beginning of the trouble with that soothing and cleansing wash, the D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema.

Drop in anyway and investigate the merits of this great remedy.

That voodooism in all its horrors is practiced in the interior of Haiti by the superstitious natives has long been known or suspected by residents and visitors to the tumultuous island. The white men who have ever had the experience of seeing the voodoo worshippers in the midst of their fearsome orgies might well be enumerated on the eight fingers. One of the few who have had the ghastly experience arrived in New York recently. He is Baron Hendrik van Renken Stam, the ship's surgeon.

Dr. Stam has had many thrilling experiences, but it remained for the voodoo worshippers of Haiti to give him the thrill of thrills.

"Talk about the spinal shivers," said the surgeon in discussing his experience, "well, I had them for fair. I had the experience about two weeks ago, and my sleep is disturbed with frightful nightmares yet."

Hobby Leads Him Ashore.

"My hobby since my college days has been botany, and in my rambles about the world I have always taken the opportunity to explore the out of the way places for botanical specimens. It was this hobby that made me a witness of the voodooistic ceremony. The ship was lying in the harbor of Port au Prince, and I took the opportunity to go ashore with my collecting case to seek rare flowers in the hills back of the Haitian capital.

"I started early in the morning, and mid-afternoon found me wandering about through the hills. I started back blindly, and in a few minutes the realization came over me that I was lost.

"As I marched blindly through the wooded hills I heard the sound of drums reverberating. At first the drumbeats sounded afar, and then they came nearer and nearer. I thought that I must be approaching some settlement, and at the thought I quickened my footsteps. Then I discerned a faint light and felt certain that a village was near.

Stumbles on Worshipers.

"As I neared the light the sound of the drumming became more and more intense, and then I distinguished voices raised in a wild chant. Like a flash the realization swept over me that I was coming upon voodoo worshippers in the midst of their weird rites. I had heard the story of the voodoo worshippers for years, and at the thought of seeing the natives in the midst of their ceremony I forgot danger and decided to see for myself what voodoo worship was.

"The nearer I came to the light, which I soon saw to be a big fire, the more cautious I became in my movements. I soon found it necessary to get down on my hands and knees and crawl through the underbrush. The beating of the drums was awful, but the noise served to cover my not altogether silent approach through the brush.

Crawls Through Underbrush.

"Nearer and nearer I crawled toward the fire, and then I found myself in a clump of bushes from which I could see the natives in their orgy, not two score feet away. About thirty blacks were in the party, and they stood or sat about the fire, the half dozen drummers pounding their instruments for their life, while the others raised their voices in the awful chant. During all this a native, with face bearded with vermilion streaks and with trinkets hanging about his neck and waist that rattled as he moved, strode up and down before the fire, chanting some wild incantation. Suddenly he approached a native holding a bundle in his arms. The chant grew wilder and the drums beat the louder.

"The bundle which the medicine man or voodoo chief seized was a living infant. Above the sound of the voices and drums I caught the infant's wail. I saw the voodoo man raise a knife above the child, and blind with rage and forgetful of my own safety, I sprang to my feet and dashed from my place of concealment toward the heathen. If the devil himself had suddenly popped into their midst those voodooists could not have been more astonished. The chant broke off suddenly, the drums ceased their thundering, and half of the worshippers took to their heels into the forest.

Fells Medicine Man.

"The voodoo medicine man stood with mouth agape watching my approach, and the next instant I had hit him over the head with my collecting case, and he dropped like a felled oak. I passed through the remaining worshippers and into the dark. As I ran my fear increased and, with the growth of fear, my speed. Far behind me I could hear the howls of my pursuers, but I had a good start and a great fear to keep me moving.

"Luckily I had headed right in my run, and about the time I had exhausted myself I saw the lights of Port au Prince, and I kept at my best effort until I was in the town."

Cured.

A cat which had the habit of taking its food under the sofa annoyed its mistress so much that at last her husband said he would cure it of the trick. "Go off to bed, lass; leave it to me," said he. "All right, George; but, mind you, do not hurt the poor thing!" George was so long downstairs that his wife was asleep when he turned in. The next morning, however, she asked how he had got on with the cat. "Oh, I sawed its legs off," said George. "What, the cat's?" "No, no; the sofa's!"—London Express.

SCENES OF EARLY REVOLT REPEATED

Diary of Mexican Woman on War of 1840.

CAPITAL STREETS RAN BLOOD

More than seventy years ago the situation in the City of Mexico was the same as existed during the last several weeks, with the exception that then the rebels held the palace and the government established itself in the citadel. But then, as now, the holders of the citadel won. The story of this early revolution, known as the Cuartazo of July, 1840, is told in the columns of the Mexican Herald, which in turn has extracted them from the diary of Mme. Calderon de la Barca. The revolutionists, headed by Valentin Gomez Farias and General Jose Urrea, actually succeeded in seizing the president, Anastasio Bustamante, in his bed, but he later escaped them and joined his adherents in the citadel, whence he directed the attack upon his former captors. Then, as now, the streets between the two strategic points of the city were swept by cannon, and no man's life was safe.

The Diary.

Follows the diary in part:

July 15, 1840—Revolution in Mexico, or pronunciamiento, as they call it. The storm which has for some time been brewing has burst forth at last. Don Valentin Gomez Farias and the banished General Urrea have pronounced for federalism. At 2 this morning, joined by the Fifth battalion and the regiment of comercio, they took up arms, set off for the palace, surprised the president in his bed and took him prisoner. Our first information was a message, arriving on the part of the government, desiring the attendance of our two old soldiers, who put on their old uniforms and set off quite pleased. Next came our friend, Don M. del C-o, who advised us to haul out the Spanish colors that they might be in readiness to fly on the balcony in case of necessity.

The firing has begun! People come running up the street. The Indians are hurrying back to their villages in double quick trot. As we are not in the center of the city our position for the present is very safe, all the cannon being directed toward the palace. All the streets near the square are platted with cannon, and it is pretended that the revolutionary party is giving arms to the lepers.

Nine o'clock p. m.—Continuation of firing without interruption. I have spent the day standing on the balcony, looking at the smoke and listening to the different rumors. Gomez Farias has been proclaimed president by his party. The streets near the square are said to be strewn with dead and wounded. There was a terrible thunderstorm this afternoon. Mingled with the roaring of the cannon, it sounded like a strife between heaven and earth. We shall not pass a very easy night, especially without our soldiers. Unfortunately, there is a bright moon, so night brings no interruption to the firing and slaughter.

Bereaved Wife Brings Report.

July 16, 1840—Our first news was brought early this morning by the wife of one of our soldiers, who came in great despair to tell us that both her husband and his comrade were shot, though not killed; that they were among the first who fell, and she came to entreat Calderon to prevent their being sent to the hospital. It is reported that Bustamante has escaped and that he fought his way, sword in hand, through the soldiers who guarded him in his apartment. Almonte, at all events, is at the head of his troops. The balls have entered many houses in the square. It must be terribly dangerous for those who live there and, among others, for our friend Senor Taglie, director of the Monte Pio, and his family.

GET A TEN CENT BOX OF CASCARETS

Insures you for Months Against a Sick Headache, Biliousness, Constipation or a Bad Stomach

Put aside—just once the Salts, Cathartic Pills, Castor Oils or purgative waters which merely force a passage through the bowels, but do not thoroughly cleanse, freshen and purify these drainage or alimentary organs, and have no effect whatever upon the liver and stomach.

Keep your inside organs pure and fresh with Cascarets, which thoroughly cleanse the stomach, remove the undigested, sour and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste and poisons in the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never grip, sicken and cost only 10 cents a box from your druggist. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never have headache, biliousness, coated tongue, indigestion, sour stomach or constipated bowels. Cascarets belong in every household. Children just love to take them.

WOMAN ASKS FOR NEW BRAIN.

She Applies at Institute, Seeking Superior Mental Equipment.

A woman who said she was Miss Emily Jane, a schoolteacher, fifty-five years old, called at the Rockefeller Institute, in New York, recently and informed Dr. Swift that she wished to have a new brain to replace her own. She said also that she desired a new character, a most superior one. She explained that she had just arrived from Boston, having selected the Rockefeller Institute for her needs because of its reputation for remarkable surgical feats.

Dr. Swift asked her to wait and then go to Dr. McRoberts from Bellevue hospital. The latter took the woman there, where she was placed in the psychopathic ward. At the hospital she said her name was Emily Jane Clarke and that she had lived at 47 Bellevue street, Boston.

BAKING POWDER TESTS

MADE FROM ACTUAL PHOTOGRAPHS TAKEN TWO MINUTES AFTER MOISTURE WAS APPLIED

Cheap or "Big Can" Baking Powder

NOTE the unevenness of the contents; also the small amount of leavening gas from the height the powder has risen in the glass. The residues from these powders vary considerably.

Cream of Tartar Powder

YOU will also note the small amount of leavening gas here; also the sediment in the bottom of glass, which is a solution of Rochelle Salts. About 80 per cent. of this powder used is left in the food as Rochelle Salts. Ask your doctor about constant dosing with Rochelle Salts.

Calumet Baking Powder

NOTE here the amount of leavening gas by the way the powder has risen over the top of the glass. Note how light and fluffy it is; also how even the grain is. This test proves CALUMET has a great amount of leavening gas that it is gradually and uniformly given off. It leaves no lawless residue.

GIRL A PRISONER IN PLASTER.

Admirer Attempts to Make Cast of Her Face—She Nearly Smothers.

A student at Caen, France, fell in love with a pretty actress and persuaded her recently to let him take a plaster cast of her head and shoulders in order that he might perpetuate her beauty in marble.

Having prepared about twenty pounds of plaster, the student applied it, begging the girl to bear bravely the discomforts of the operation. Presently the plaster began to set, and the girl found breathing difficult. Feeling faint, she called on her admirer to remove the plaster, but it stuck fast. Then she shrieked that she was dying.

The young man rushed for the doctor. On the arrival of the physician he looked at the girl, then said calmly: "It's not a doctor you want; it's a mason."

A mason was found and with hammer and chisel began, amid many heartrending appeals from the imprisoned model, to chip her out.

The incident put an end to the student's romance, for the actress is now suing her blundering admirer for damages, and the landlord of the studio has entered claim for compensation for the damage caused on the premises during the extrication of the model.

Keeps Your Stove "Always Ready for Company"

A bright, clean, glossy stove is the joy and pride of every housekeeper. But it is hard to keep a stove nice and shiny—unless Black Silk Stove Polish is used.

Here is the reason: Black Silk Stove Polish sticks right to the iron. It doesn't rub off or dust off. Its shine lasts four times longer than the shine of any other polish. You only need to polish once, fourth as often, yet your stove will be cleaner, brighter and better looking than it has been since you first bought it. Use

BLACK SILK STOVE POLISH

LIQUID OR PASTE ONE QUALITY

Be sure to get the genuine. Black Silk Stove Polish costs you no more than the ordinary kind. Keep your grates, registers, fenders and stove pipes bright and free from rusting by using BLACK SILK AIR-DRYING ENAMEL. Brush free with each can of enamel only.

Use BLACK SILK METAL POLISH for silverware, nickel, tinware or brass. It works quickly, easily, and leaves a brilliant surface. It has no equal for use on automobiles.

WILSON TAKES THE OATH

WILD OVER WILSON AT THE CAPITAL

Jubilant Thousands Grow Frantic.

DEMOCRATS OWN CITY

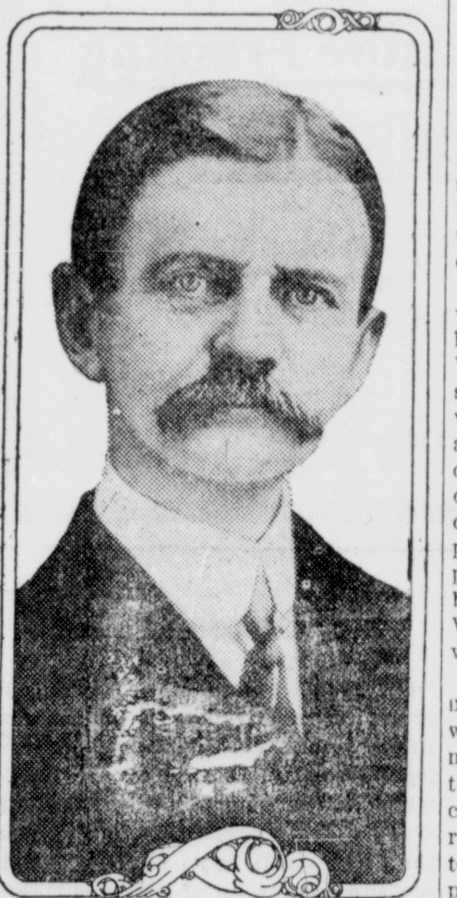

Inauguration Big Success in Every Way.

STANDS AND STREETS JAMMED

Dignitaries From Many Lands Join With Noted Persons in and Out of Official Life in Cheering New President—Essex Troop of New Jersey Guard of Honor for Taft's Successor, Culver Black Horse Troop of Indiana Acts for Marshall.

Washington, March 4.—The great deed is done, and Woodrow Wilson is president of the United States. Followed by the presidential salute of 101 guns and the cheering of the greatest throng ever gathered in Washington, he was sworn in today shortly after noon. The inaugural address which followed was one of the shortest on record, but the parade was not. Despite the demand for democratic simplicity, this pageant was one of the longest and most imposing that ever marched in honor of a new occupant of the White House.

At about half past 10 Mr. Wilson was waited on at the Shoreham by members of the congressional committee and escorted to the White

VICE PRESIDENT MARSHALL.

House, where he was greeted by President Taft, and shortly thereafter the president and president-elect were entered a carriage for the trip to the Capitol. Mr. Taft seated upon the right hand and Mr. Wilson on the left. The president-elect had as a guard of honor the Essex troop of Newark, N. J.

Marshall Also Had Escort. Vice President Marshall, who had also been escorted from the Shoreham to the White House, followed in another carriage. Because of the vacancy in the office prior to his qualifying he rode with members of the committee, the event being a sad reminder to many of the death of Vice President Sherman. Mr. Marshall's guard of honor was the Culver Black Horse troop of Indiana. Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Marshall did not ride in the inaugural procession, but the first lady of the land and her three charming daughters and the wife of the vice president were escorted to the Capitol by a special military aid.

Arrived at the Capitol building, President Taft and Mr. Wilson proceeded at once to the president's room, where Mr. Taft bled himself during the brief remainder of his term by signing bills passed in the last hours of congress. Mr. Marshall repaired to the vice president's room to await the moment of taking the oath of office. Meanwhile the senate chamber presented an animated scene, for today it held not only the members of the highest legislative body in the land, but the supreme court of the United States, the diplomatic corps, members of the house of representatives, distinguished officials of the government and a gallery brilliant with the presence of the beauty and distinction of the land.

An Imposing Procession.

The ancient ceremony of turning back the clock having been attended to in due form, at exactly 12 by this amended timepiece, appeared the president and president-elect of the United States escorted by the honorable committee to the chief seats in front of the presiding officer's desk. Thomas R. Marshall was then sworn in by the president pro tem. of the senate, after which there was prayer by the chaplain, the new vice president delivered a brief inaugural address and gave the oath to the new members of the senate, and the stately procession was ready to move to the temporary stand built over the east portico of the Capitol.

Headed by the sergeant-at-arms of the senate and the sergeant-at-arms of the house, followed by the marshal of the District of Columbia, the procession moved in the following order: Chief Justice White and the eight associate justices of the United States supreme court, the committee on arrangements, the president and president-elect, the ambassadors and ministers from foreign nations in all their regalia of office, the vice president and former vice presidents, the president pro tem. of the senate, senators and former senators, the speaker and clerk of the house, retiring members and members elect of the house, heads of executive departments of the government, governors of states and territories, Admiral Dewey, head of the navy; Major General Leonard Wood, head of the army; officers of the army and navy who have received the thanks of congress and all other persons who have been admitted to the floor of the senate, followed by the occupants of the senate gallery headed by members of the diplomatic corps.

Administering the Oath.

Arrived at the temporary stand where hundreds of people were already seated and tens of thousands more were banded in front of the stand, the high dignitaries took the places allotted to them and prepared to solemnize the chief event of the day.

For the first time Chief Justice Edward D. White administered the oath, his predecessor, Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller, having officiated at the last six public inaugurations. In a firm voice the president-elect repeated after the venerable chief justice the oath, bowing to kiss the Bible at its close. The boom of cannon and the cheers of the mighty concourse of people announced the fact that a new president of the United States had been inducted into office and that William Howard Taft was now a private citizen.

The inaugural address was delivered in the easy manner and full voice for which President Wilson is already famous, but the crowd was so enormous that only those nearest the platform could hear. Many complimentary references were made to the lofty tone of the address. In its brevity, pithiness and high moral plane it is likened to the inaugural address of Lincoln.

In the journey back to the White House President Wilson and Mr. Taft exchanged places in the first carriage, the new president now on the right hand and the ex-president on the left. Wilson was cheered almost continuously throughout the mile of Pennsylvania avenue extending between the Capitol and the treasury building. At the White House luncheon was served to the presidential and vice presidential parties. Mr. Taft, whose treatment of his successor throughout the day has been the soul of courtesy and good feeling, excused himself soon after the luncheon to take the train for Augusta, Ga., where he will rest for several weeks before moving to his new home in New Haven, where he is to be Kent professor of law at Yale.

The reviewing stand in front of the White House, to which the presidential party then repaired, seats about 1,500 persons and is crowded with friends and relatives of the new president and vice president.

Gigantic Parade Under Way.

The gigantic parade is now under way. The first division, led by the famous Marine band, is already passing the court of honor. As this band approached the president's stand it broke out in the strains of "Hail to the Chief" amid the cheering of the assembled thousands. The first parade division consists of some of the finest marching regiments of the United States army and navy and the West Point and Annapolis cadets, perhaps the best drilled body of young men in the world.

The scene along Pennsylvania avenue is one never to be forgotten. Practically every inch of space on both sides of the great thoroughfare is occupied. The temporary stands, the sidewalks, the cross streets back for a long distance, the windows of every building along the route and even the trees and house-tops are alive with humanity. The decorations, not only of this street but of the whole line of march and in a lesser degree of the entire city, have never been more effective. Great arches and festoons span the avenue at frequent intervals. These when lighted at night will make of Pennsylvania avenue a veritable fairland, and with the garlands of green and white and the display of the national colors the effect will be like that of day.

Quarter of Million Visitors.

By conservative estimates there are a quarter of a million visitors in Washington today and almost an equal number of the residents of the city who have also turned out to see the show.

Following the regular army and navy and cadet division comes the national guard from the various states, headed in many instances by the governor and his staff. There are more than 20,000 marchers in this division alone. The entire national guard of New Jersey is out in honor of the first Jerseyman to become president of the United States. Virginia, the new president's birthplace, and Georgia, the native state of Mrs. Wilson, are also represented by thousands of troops, while Pennsylvania, New York, Maryland and other nearby states swell the great marching columns.

Veterans in Line.

The third division is made up of the Grand Army of the Republic, Spanish War Veterans and other patriotic organizations. The old soldiers, who hold an honored place in every inaugural procession, are growing fewer each year.

The last division consists of political and civic organizations. In it are marching clubs from all parts of the country.

THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS

President Wilson Briefly Outlines Changes Needed.

Washington, March 4.—President Wilson's inaugural address was comparatively brief. He referred to the greatness of the nation and the magnitude of our industries, but declared we have not hitherto stopped thoughtfully enough to count the human cost, the cost of lives snuffed out, of energies overtaxed and broken, the fearful physical and spiritual cost to the men and women and children upon whom the dead weight and burden of it all has fallen pitilessly the years through.

Speaking of existing conditions that, in his opinion, should be changed, President Wilson included the following as the chief items:

A tariff which cuts us off from our proper part in the commerce of the world, violates the just principles of taxation and makes the government a facile instrument in the hands of private interests; a banking and currency system based upon the necessity of the government to sell its bonds fifty years ago and perfectly adapted to concentrating cash and restricting credits; an industrial system which, take it on all sides, financial as well as administrative, holds capital in leading strings, restricts the liberties and limits the opportunities of labor and exploits without renewing or conserving the natural resources of the country; a body of agricultural activities never yet given the efficiency of great business undertakings or served as it should be through the instrumentality of science taken directly to the farm or afforded the facilities of credit best suited to its practical needs; water-courses undeveloped, waste places unreclaimed, forests untended, fast disappearing without prospect of renewal.

PROGRESSIVES WIN IN MAINE

Elect Mayor and Four Out of Five Aldermen in Auburn.

Portland, Me., March 4.—The Progressive party won its first important success in the municipal elections in Maine by electing A. W. Fowles mayor of Auburn with four out of five aldermen. The city last year was Republican. In Lewiston the Progressives won two out of seven aldermen. Elections were held in ten cities, Democrats winning six majorities. Republicans carried Eastport, which was Democratic last year.

WILL WILSON BE BOSS? IS QUESTION

Many Persons Prophecy Bryan Influence.

THINK HE NEEDS MAN BEHIND

Yet as Governor He Ran His Office as He Chose, Regardless of Would Be Advisers, and It Is Expected Maybe New President Will Follow Same Self Reliance in White House.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, March 4.—[Special.]—"Who's going to be president?" What a silly question! Well, there is still a deal of speculation everywhere as to whether Woodrow Wilson will be the boss or some one whom he selects for his adviser. For several months, while various persons have been most obliging and very busy helping Governor Wilson choose a cabinet, these and others have been telling how William J. Bryan would dominate the Wilson administration; also pointing out what other influences would shape the policies of the first Democratic administration in twenty years.

And when things seemed to be fairly well fixed in the minds of those who must have a finger in the administration pie along comes a report which says that Bryan can't arrange the cabinet and therefore won't play in the game. And then began another series of questions as to who is going to be the big man behind Wilson. Somehow the impression seems to have gained ground that the new president must have a "big man behind him."

It May Be Wilson.

Stop! Look! Listen! Maybe Wilson will run his own administration, just as he has run other things which have come under his charge. Now, that's really worth thinking about. It has quite a lot of common sense behind it, for Woodrow Wilson has shown a capacity to do things in his own way and to go ahead with what he thought was right regardless of those who may have been instrumental in pushing him forward for preferment as governor. He may do the same thing as president. The man who has seemed such a political enigma to most of the politicians may prove as self-reliant as was Grover Cleveland.

How He Picked Barrett.

When Secretary Elihu Root was making his tour of South America he came across the isthmus at Panama and met John Barrett, then minister to Colombia. Barrett came home with him and talked about South America and other things. For Barrett can talk. Root learns men quickly, and it did not take him more than three days to find that he needed Barrett as head of the bureau of American republics.

He needed a man who could talk about the southern republics and talk to the representatives of those countries. He appointed Barrett, and the latter has been all that could be hoped. Barrett advertised the bureau and the countries. He talked to people, and he wrote about the countries and their possibilities. He made it the big show. It has been a success, and Root is perfectly satisfied now that he picked the right man for the place.

Lodge in the Gallery.

"There's Lodge in the gallery," remarked an old timer in the senate, and he called attention to the fact as if it were something new. And that was the fact. The Massachusetts senator rarely, if ever before, had been seen in the gallery. He took a friend there and remained to point out some of the distinguished men on the floor who were his colleagues. To see other senators with friends in the gallery creates no surprise. It is the unusual that surprises.

Another Old Soldier.

A few days ago I told how I went wrong once in saying that no more old soldiers of the civil war would be elected to the senate. I named four men who had since been elected. And now Nathan Goff has been elected from West Virginia for six years. He is a veteran of the civil war. When it comes to making predictions about senatorial elections there are always several guesses, and it's better not to be too positive.

They Like Newlands.

One day in the senate, when Senator Newlands was making a very long speech and the senate was fidgeting over the delay of the appropriation bill pending, one senator remarked, "Sometimes I am almost sorry that Nevada was ever admitted as a state." But at the same time the senator from Nevada is well liked. Besides, he generally says something when he takes the floor, and he always knows what he is talking about.

Two Lotteries Will Go.

Without desks and seats in the house

HAS LARGE PLUM TREE TO SHAKE

there will be no lottery for the location of members as heretofore. That was always an interesting occasion in the house. In the senate there will not be a lottery for many years to come, as there is no possibility of the admission of another state in the next generation. The lottery in the senate was of constitutional authority and related to the drawing for long and short terms when senators from a new state was admitted. Both lotteries will now pass into history.

WYOMING IN AN ACCIDENT

New Battleship Damaged, but No One Is Injured.

Washington, March 4.—Rear Admiral Badger, in command of the Atlantic fleet, reported that the new battleship Wyoming had met with a slight accident.

During target practice a few days ago the cap square on the trunion block of one of the big forward turret guns was split. No one was injured and in spite of the damage to the gun it was said it could have been fired again without the least danger.

CALLS THAW STILL INSANE

Matteawan Superintendent's Affidavit So States.

Albany, N. Y., March 4.—Harry K. Thaw, slayer of Stanford White, still is of unsound mind and his release from the Matteawan asylum would be dangerous to the public peace and safety, according to an affidavit made to Attorney General Carmody by Dr. Roy L. Leak, acting superintendent of the hospital.

The affidavit will be used as the state's return to the writ of habeas corpus obtained last Saturday directing the state to produce Thaw before Justice Giegerich in New York Thursday and show cause why Thaw should not be given his freedom.

JOHN BURNS AVOIDS TROUBLE

Has All Women Leave Hall in Which He Is Speaking.

London, March 4.—After several suffragettes had been ejected from a meeting at Battersea at which John Burns, president of the local government board, was speaking he requested all women to leave the hall. Mr. Burns announced several days ago that in his present campaign in behalf of the progressive candidates for the London county council he was going to do his best to break down "tyranny of organized blackguardism."

LOEB RESIGNS HIS PLACE

Will Quit Federal Service to Enter Guggenheim's Employ.

New York, March 4.—The resignation of William Loeb, Jr., collector of the port of New York, has been sent to Washington, it was announced. Mr. Loeb's withdrawal from office was foretold recently.

A position as managing director of the Guggenheim companies, with which he already is associated as a director, has been created for him.

Woodrow Wilson, as president, will act upon the resignation.

WOULD BREED STRIPED RATS.

Biologist to Use Burbank Method on Rodents and Birds.

Applying to a colony of rats the principle used with such marvellous success by Luther Burbank in various forms of plant life, George B. Culver, head of the biological department of the Los Angeles high school, expects to produce a breed of varicolored rats with zebra stripes.

Culver has obtained twelve pure white and an equal number of pure brown rats. He has chosen each lot from families whose ancestry has never been cross marked in any particular.

Culver also intends to apply the Burbank principle to domestic canaries and wild finches in the hope of producing a bird of wonderful voice and startling as to color.

THIRTY POISONED BY BREAD

Cottonseed Oil Shipped in Korosene Barrels Used in Loaves.

Atlantic City, N. J., March 4.—When William Gross Muller, a baker, was notified that one of his patrons who became violently ill from eating bread died he investigated and learned that the cottonseed oil in making 2,800 loaves of bread and 1,000 pies was contaminated. He immediately dispatched his drivers over the routes to retrieve the goods.

Thirty of the patrons required the services of physicians.

President Wilson Will Make Many Appointments.

TAFT'S NOMINATIONS FAIL

Action of Senate in Refusing to Confirm Over Fourteen Hundred Names Submitted to That Body by Retiring Chief Executive Imposes Large Task Upon His Successor.

Washington, March 4.—To President Wilson will fall the task of filling more than 1,400 places made vacant by the refusal of the senate to confirm appointments by President Taft since Dec. 2. The places that became vacant with the adjournment of congress include practically all appointments outside of the diplomatic service, the army, navy, marine corps and allied services.

Many important positions are involved in the list. Among them are those of Edgar E. Clark, interstate commerce commissioner; Dr. C. P. Neill, commissioner of labor; the three commissioners of the District of Columbia; the nine members of the new commission on industrial relations; Christian S. Pearce, to be assistant treasurer of the United States; W. W. Warwick, to be assistant comptroller of the treasury; Walter F. Frear, governor of Hawaii; Ernest A. Mott-Smith, secretary of Hawaii, and the executive council of Porto Rico.

Federal attorneys in five districts, United States marshals in six districts, more than fifty consular appointments and many collectors of customs, surveyors of customs and registers and receivers of land offices also failed of confirmation.

The largest list of vacancies comes from the list of postmasters. While President Taft sent in more than 1,350 postoffice appointments less than a dozen of them were confirmed.

TROOPS FIRE ON MEXICANS

Mistake Wood Gatherers for Soldiers Crossing Line.

Douglas, Ariz., March 4.—There was some firing near the line caused by an attempt of the negro troopers to intercept what was supposed to be a detachment of Mexican troops crossing the line. It proved to be a party of Mexicans gathering firewood with pack animals. No one was wounded.

Colonel Gullfoyle sent to Washington a supplementary report of the battle of Sunday. It is said that it contains a copy of a message found in which there was a plan outlined for a union of the rebels on the Mexican side with those on the American side. It is said the plot was to attack Douglas and Agua Prieta at the same time. The message is said to have contained violent anti-American statements.

PASSES THIRTY-FIVE BILLS

Minnesota House Approves Number of Measures.

St. Paul, March 4.—The house passed thirty-five bills, nine of which were senate bills and may now become laws. Among the important measures passed were the Lundeen presidential primary bill, the Bjornson bill providing publication of legal matter in all newspapers of the state, the Spooner convict labor bill, the express and Pullman tax bills, the Sanborn county board road aid bill and the Denegre senate bill allowing religious societies to merge. The Harrison-Vollmer joint resolution memorializing congress in favor of a Twin City-Twin Ports canal also was passed. Action will be taken toward obtaining similar legislation by the Wisconsin legislature.

GRADUATES HONOR WILSON

Princeton Men Indulge in Demonstration at Smoker.

Washington, March 4.—President Wilson was given a Princeton welcome to the national capital, a welcome that brought reminiscences of his many years as president of Princeton university. The occasion was a smoker at which graduates from all parts of the country gathered.

For an hour the president-elect was the center of a wild demonstration of cheers and songs. The enthusiasm of it all moved him so deeply that he spoke for a few minutes, expressing his thanks for the confidence that the Princeton alumni had reposed in him.

INDIANS CAPTURE WM. LESLIE TAYLOR

Young Mining Engineer Taken Captive While Exploring Wilds of Venezuela

STATE DEPT. IS APPEALED TO

Taylor is a Nephew of P. W. Donovan of this City and is Well Known Here

P. W. Donovan received the following message last night: "Maracaibo, Venezuela, March 3.—Two mining engineers, Guy N. Bjorge of Duluth, Minn., and William Leslie Taylor were captured Saturday by wild Motilones Indians while making petroleum explorations near Lake Maracaibo. News was received here today through official sources. The American consul, John A. Ray, left at once for the Indian country."

The two young men mentioned in the above dispatch are both University of Minnesota graduates. Wm. Taylor is a nephew of P. W. Donovan, superintendent of the E. J. Longyear Exploration company, and was employed some time by his uncle and made his home with him.

Taylor and Bjorge were classmates at the university, graduating last spring. They were recommended by their professors to a New York firm, which was looking for two mining engineers to go to Venezuela to prospect for oil. The young men were placed in charge of the party, which consisted of two guides, a cook and some natives.

Bjorge and Taylor left Minnesota last Thanksgiving day and arrived in New York from which point they sailed for Venezuela, leaving for the interior about Christmas time.

Mr. Donovan said that explorers had penetrated the interior at other times and had no trouble and cannot account for the capture unless it is on account of a fight or feud between the coast Indians and the tribes of the interior.

Harry Donovan of New York city has taken up with the Venezuelan ambassador and the state department the reported capture of Wm. Donovan. Mr. Donovan has also joined him in an appeal from this point. Taylor's parents live at Dundas and Mr. Donovan went there last afternoon to confer with them.

CALLS ADAM AND EVE FAKES.

University Professor Stamps Biblical Incident as Fiction.

William Duncan McMillan of the University of Chicago astonished his class recently by whacking Adam and Eve as fakes.

"Biblical chroniclers arranged the story of Adam and Eve from folklore to explain the origin of man," said he. "There can be no doubt that Adam and Eve and their tempter, the serpent, never actually existed. The story cannot be considered anything but a myth, evolved by the ancients to account for the presence of humans upon earth. The universally credited theory of evolution smashes the one man and one woman story. There never was a first man or a first woman. "If Adam and Eve lived in the garden of Eden 6,000 years ago and light travels at the rate of 186,000 miles per second, with our present day powerful microscope lenses we should still be able to see them in Paradise."

COUNCIL DECIDES ON CITY HALL SITE

Orders Purchase for $1500 of Three Lots Corner of South Fifth and Laurel Streets.

LIQUOR LICENSES ARE GRANTED

Payrolls and Bills Allowed—White Bros, Election Booths Ordered Bought at $50

The council met in regular session last night and all were present except Alderman Olson. The most important business transacted was the motion carried by a 6 to 3 vote to purchase for a city hall site at $1,500 the three lots on the northeast corner of South Fifth and Laurel streets, on one of which the Salvation Army hall is located, the property being more accurately described as lots 23, 23 and 24 of block 45 of the city of Brainerd.

It took considerable voting before the measure passed the council. Alderman Lagerquist brought up the city hall site matter, referring to the talk had about it at the last meeting of the council. Attorney George H. Gardner stated the title to the three lots was good and had the abstracts and deeds covering the property to show to the council, the city attorney having passed on the titles some time ago. Title in lots 24 and 23 vested in Martha G. Thompson and W. S. Conrad. Lot 22 is agreed to be conveyed to the city by warranty deed.

Alderman Henning moved to lay on the table for the balance of the life of the council the purchase of a city hall site. It was voted down 7 to 2, Alderman Henning and Anderson favoring the motion.

Alderman Dieckhaus moved to advertise for bids for a lot 75 by 140 feet in size, such property being covered by 90 day options, bids to be opened March 15 and the various sites offered to be placed on the ballots April 1 to be voted for at the regular spring election. The motion was voted down 6 to 3. Aldermen Dieckhaus, Henning and Anderson favoring the motion.

Alderman Lagerquist moved to purchase lots 22, 23 and 24 block 45. Alderman Henning moved to amend and have the question of the purchase of the lots deferred and submitted to a vote of the people. The amendment failed 6 to 3. Aldermen Dieckhaus, Henning and Anderson voting in favor of the motion.

On the original motion of Alderman Lagerquist the council voted to purchase the lots, the ballot standing 6 to 3. The ayes were Aldermen Elder, Fogelstrom, Purdy, Webb, Lagerquist and Rowley. The nays were Aldermen Dieckhaus, Henning and Anderson.

The White Brothers election booths were ordered purchased for $50. The purchasing committee was instructed to purchase the necessary dry wood needed at the hose houses for the balance of the winter. A closet was ordered constructed at the Southeast Brainerd hose house.

PROF. COBB REELECTED

Superintendent of City Schools is Again Elected to Position He Has Filled With Credit

The most important business transacted by the school board last night was the reelection of W. C. Cobb as superintendent of the city schools. Mr. Cobb has been most successful in his management of the schools of Brainerd and his work has given pupils, teachers and the school board the utmost satisfaction.

Routine work of the board included the allowance of a number of bills.

FEBRUARY REPORT ON CITY SCHOOLS

Supt. W. C. Cobb Writes of the Activities of the High School and Grade Scholars

ENROLLMENT IS 1,867 PUPILS

The Record of Teachers' Attendance, Miss Margaret Somers Heading the List

The Dispatch publishes herewith Supt. W. C. Cobb's February report on the high school and grade schools of the city. Mr. Cobb says:

During the month just closed a joint observance of Washington's and Lincoln's birthday was observed in all the schools on February 12, which exercises were well attended by parents and citizens considering the unfavorable weather of the day. The following ministers addressed the several schools with stirring patriotic addresses which were much appreciated and for which the schools extend their hearty thanks to the pastors: Rev. R. E. Cody addressed the Whittier school, Rev. Lowrie spoke at the Lincoln, Rev. Sheridan at the Washington, Rev. Satterlee and Rev. Boquist at the Harrison, Rev. Zabel and Rev. Campbell at the Lowell. The patriotic talks by these ministerial representatives were so well received that the principals of the several buildings are unanimous in their wish that they might be repeated oftener in our schools. School Board Members W. E. Erickson and Wm. Barron attended the exercises in their wards and gave short talks to the children.

The interest aroused by the high school debaters has been spreading into the grades. The eight grade at the Washington building have had several debates on current public questions and the eight grade at the Lowell have recently challenged them to a contest between the two buildings in the near future.

Prof. Howard of the State Agricultural school visited the schools today and gave wholesome talks to the upper grade pupils in the Washington and Harrison schools.

The teachers and pupils of the Whittier building are proud over their recent success in winning a prize picture in the Journal Junior contest in competitive composition. The boy whose composition won the prize for the Whittier building is John Downie of Miss Barrett's room. His success will be an incentive to others in the schools to try to do likewise.

Several of the pupils have had their essays published in the Journal Junior.

While the upper grade girls in the several schools have been pursuing their weekly lesson in sewing, the boys, at a loss to know what to do with themselves, have under the direction of their teachers been experimenting with manual training with such facilities as could be secured from home, and from the building janitors. Although working at a great disadvantage in the absence of any regular equipment, yet with jack knife and saw, hammer and sandpaper a few planes and chisels many useful household articles have been turned out, some of which would do credit to a regular manual training department. All told perhaps a hundred or more paper knives, hat racks, necktie boxes, taboretts, etc., have been turned out. One boy finished a small stand which he sold to a man on his way home from school for $2.00 and immediately laid his plans for making another one. These efforts on the part of the pupils and their teachers probably mark the beginning of manual training in Brainerd schools just as the efforts of the high school girls and their teachers last year in cookery marked the beginning of the domestic economy department installed this year.

The fondness of children for initiative, for doing something is shown in the enterprise of several of the grade boys of the Whittier who have been publishing a small newspaper each week on a small hand press owned by the enterprising editor.

The Botany class of the high school have been taking up the study of agriculture since the middle of the year and are planning on some practical work for the spring along the line of school gardening. Arrangements have been made to secure a supply of seeds for this purpose through the courtesy of one of the local papers. The Mechanical Drawing class has recently turned out some very creditable work.

FEMALE ANIMALS BRIGHTER.

Scientist Declares Sex Shows Supremacy in Tests on Pups.

Professor E. H. Harper of the chair of biology of the Northwestern university at Chicago has been experimenting on the relative intelligence of the sexes in animals. He made his experiments on pups and kittens. He found the females were brighter, more intelligent, grasped ideas quicker than males. It was the same with kittens.

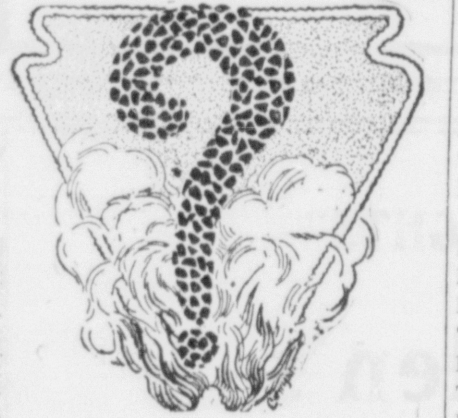

"The female in all trials displayed great quickness in grasping ideas," said the professor. "The female maintained her supremacy over her male companion in a rather militant manner, which is quite according to the ideas of sex supremacy. That the conditions revealed are illustrative in the case of men and women is not quite certain. But such a theory would find support in some quarters."

Cause of Eczema Now Explained

Eczema, Psoriasis and other skin troubles are caused by myriads of germs that work in the skin. Salves have been tried but have been proven worthless, for they only clog the pores and fail utterly to remove the real cause of the disease.

These germs can be destroyed only by a wash, and unless this is promptly done, they rapidly multiply, gnawing their way deep into the sensitive tissue. This is what causes that awful itch, and what causes a mere rash may grow worse and develop into a loathsome and torturing skin disease with its years of misery.

Don't take any chances! Destroy the germs at the beginning of the trouble with that soothing and cleansing wash, the D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema.

SURGEON STOPS A BABY SACRIFICE

Ship's Doctor Disperses Haitian Voodooists.

STUMBLES INTO CEREMONY.

Baron Hendrik van Renken Stam While Hunting For Flowers Bursts Upon Wild Scene of Blacks at Barbaric Worship—Ready to Kill Infant—He Knocks Medicine Man Down.

That voodooism in all its horrors is practiced in the interior of Haiti by the superstitious natives has long been known or suspected by residents and visitors to the tumultuous island. The white men who have ever had the experience of seeing the voodoo worshippers in the midst of their fearsome orgies might well be enumerated on the eight fingers. One of the few who have had the ghastly experience arrived in New York recently. He is Baron Hendrik van Renken Stam, the ship's surgeon.

Dr. Stam has had many thrilling experiences, but it remained for the voodoo worshippers of Haiti to give him the thrill of thrills.

"Talk about the spinal shivers," said the surgeon in discussing his experience, "well, I had them for fair. I had the experience about two weeks ago, and my sleep is disturbed with frightful nightmares yet."

Hobby Leads Him Ashore.

"My hobby since my college days has been botany, and in my rambles about the world I have always taken the opportunity to explore the out of the way places for botanical specimens. It was this hobby that made me a witness of the voodooistic ceremony. The ship was lying in the harbor of Port au Prince, and I took the opportunity to go ashore with my collecting case to seek rare flowers in the hills back of the Haitian capital.

"I started early in the morning, and mid-afternoon found me wandering about through the hills. I started back blindly, and in a few minutes the realization came over me that I was lost.

"As I marched blindly through the wooded hills I heard the sound of drums reverberating. At first the drums sounded afar, and then they came nearer and nearer. I thought that I must be approaching some settlement, and at the thought I quickened my footsteps. Then I discerned a faint light and felt certain that a village was near.

Stumbles on Worshippers.

"As I neared the light the sound of the drumming became more and more intense, and then I distinguished voices raised in a wild chant. Like a flash the realization swept over me that I was coming upon voodoo worshippers in the midst of their weird rites. I had heard the story of the voodoo worshippers for years, and at the thought of seeing the natives in the midst of their ceremony I forgot danger and decided to see for myself what voodoo worship was.

"The nearer I came to the light, which I soon saw to be a big fire, the more cautious I became in my movements. I soon found it necessary to get down on my hands and knees and crawl through the underbrush. The beating of the drums was awful, but the noise served to cover my not altogether silent approach through the brush.

Crawls Through Underbrush.

"Nearer and nearer I crawled toward the fire, and then I found myself in a clump of bushes from which I could see the natives in their orgy, not two score feet away. About thirty blacks were in the party, and they stood or sat about the fire, the half dozen drummers pounding their instruments for dear life, while the others raised their voices in the awful chant. During all this a native, with face bearded with vermilion streaks and with trinkets hanging about his neck and waist that rattled as he moved, strode up and down before the fire, chanting some wild incantation. Suddenly he approached a native holding a bundle in his arms. The chant grew wilder and the drums beat the louder.

"The bundle which the medicine man or voodoo chief seized was a living infant. Above the sound of the voices and drums I caught the infant's wail. I saw the voodoo man raise a knife above the child, and blind with rage and forgetful of my own safety, I sprang to my feet and dashed from my place of concealment toward the heathen. If the devil himself had suddenly popped into their midst those voodooists could not have been more astonished. The chant broke off suddenly, the drums ceased their thundering, and half of the worshippers took to their heels into the forest.

Fells Medicine Man.

"The voodoo medicine man stood with mouth agape watching my approach, and the next instant I had hit him over the head with my collecting case, and he dropped like a felled oak. I passed through the remaining worshippers and into the dark. As I ran my fear increased and, with the growth of fear, my speed. Far behind me I could hear the howls of my pursuers, but I had a good start and a great fear to keep me moving.

"Luckily I had headed right in my run, and about the time I had exhausted myself I saw the lights of Port au Prince, and I kept at my best effort until I was in the town."

Cured.

A cat which had the habit of taking its food under the sofa annoyed its mistress so much that at last her husband said he would cure it of the trick. "Go off to bed, lass; leave it to me," said he. "All right, George; but, mind you, do not hurt the poor thing!" George was so long downstairs that his wife was asleep when he turned in. The next morning, however, she asked how he had got on with the cat. "Oh, I sawed its legs off!" said George. "What, the cat's?" "No, no; the sofa's!"—London Express.

SCENES OF EARLY REVOLT REPEATED

Diary of Mexican Woman on War of 1840.

CAPITAL STREETS RAN BLOOD

How Cannon Belched Shot in Public Thoroughfares, Killing Many Innocent, Just as Occurred in Recent Battles Recounted in Interesting Record of Mme. de la Barca.

More than seventy years ago the situation in the City of Mexico was the same as existed during the last several weeks, with the exception that then the rebels held the palace and the government established itself in the citadel. But then, as now, the holders of the citadel won. The story of this early revolution, known as the courtelazo of July, 1840, is told in the columns of the Mexican Herald, which in turn has extracted them from the diary of Mme. Calderon de la Barca. The revolutionists, headed by Valentin Gomez Farias and General Jose Urrea, actually succeeded in seizing the president, Anastasio Bustamante, in his bed, but he later escaped them and joined his adherents in the citadel, whence he directed the attack upon his former captors. Then, as now, the streets between the two strategic points of the city were swept by cannon, and no man's life was safe.

The Diary.

Follows the diary in part: July 15, 1840—Revolution in Mexico, or pronunciamiento, as they call it. The storm which has for some time been brewing has burst forth at last. Don Valentin Gomez Farias and the banished General Urrea have pronounced for federalism. At 2 this morning, joined by the Fifth battalion and the regiment of commerce, they took up arms, set off for the palace, surprised the president in his bed and took him prisoner. Our first information was a message, arriving on the part of the government, desiring the attendance of our two old soldiers, who put on their old uniforms and set off quite pleased. Next came our friend, Don M—del C—o, who advised us to haul out the Spanish colors that they might be in readiness to fly on the balcony in case of necessity.

The firing has begun! People come running up the street. The Indians are hurrying back to their villages in double quick trot. As we are not in the center of the city our position for the present is very safe, all the cannon being directed toward the palace. All the streets near the square are planted with cannon, and it is pretended that the revolutionary party is giving arms to the lepers.

Nine o'clock p. m.—Continuation of firing without interruption. I have spent the day standing on the balcony, looking at the smoke and listening to the different rumors. Gomez Farias has been proclaimed president by his party. The streets near the square are said to be strewn with dead and wounded. There was a terrible thunderstorm this afternoon. Mingled with the roaring of the cannon, it sounded like a strife between heavenly and earthly artillery. We shall not pass a very easy night, especially without our soldiers. Unfortunately, there is a bright moon, so night brings no interruption to the firing and slaughter.

Bereaved Wife Brings Report.

July 16, 1840—Our first news was brought early this morning by the wife of one of our soldiers, who came in great despair to tell us that both her husband and his comrade are shot, though not killed; that they were among the first who fell, and she came to entreat Calderon to prevent their being sent to the hospital. It is reported that Bustamante has escaped and that he fought his way, sword in hand, through the soldiers who guarded him in his apartment. Almonte, at all events, is at the head of his troops. The balls have entered many houses in the square. It must be terribly dangerous for those who live there and, among others, for our friend Senor Tagle, director of the Monte Pio, and his family.

They have just brought the government bulletin, which gives the following statement of the circumstances: "Yesterday, at midnight, Urrea, with a handful of troops belonging to the garrison and his neighborhood, took possession of the national palace, surprising the guard and committing the 'incivility' of imprisoning his excellency the president, Don Anastasio Bustamante, the commander in chief, the Mayor de la Plaza and other chiefs. Don Gabriel Valencia, chief of the plana mayor (staff); General Don Antonio Mozo and the minister of war, Don Juan Nepomuceno Almonte, re-entrained in the citadel, prepared to attack the pronunciados, who, aiming the lowest populace, took possession of the towers of the cathedral and of some of the highest edifices in the center of the city."

WOMAN ASKS FOR NEW BRAIN.

She Applies at Institute, Seeking Superior Mental Equipment.

A woman who said she was Miss Emily Jane, a schoolteacher, fifty-five years old, called at the Rockefeller institute, in New York, recently and informed Dr. Swift that she wished to have a new brain to replace her own. She said also that she desired a new character, a most superior one. She explained that she had just arrived from Boston, having selected the Rockefeller institute for her needs because of its reputation for remarkable surgical feats.

Dr. Swift asked her to wait and then got Dr. McRoberts from Bellevue hospital. The latter took the woman there, where she was placed in the psychopathic ward. At the hospital she said her name was Emily Jane Clarke and that she had lived at 47 Bellevue street, Boston.

YOU will also note the small amount of leavening gas here; also the sediment in the bottom of glass, which is a solution of Rochelle Salts. About 80 per cent. of this powder used is left in the food as Rochelle Salts. Ask your doctor about constant dosing with Rochelle Salts.

NOTE here the amount of leavening gas by the way the powder has risen over the top of the glass. Note how light and fluffy it is; also how even the grain is. This test proves CALUMET has a great amount of leavening gas that it is gradually and uniformly given off. It leaves no wholesome residue.

GIRL A PRISONER IN PLASTER.

Admirer Attempts to Make Cast of Her Face—She Nearly Smothers.

A student at Caen, France, fell in love with a pretty actress and persuaded her recently to let him take a plaster cast of her head and shoulders in order that he might perpetuate her beauty in marble.

Having prepared about twenty pounds of plaster, the student applied it, begging the girl to bear bravely the discomforts of the operation. Presently the plaster began to set, and the girl found breathing difficult. Feeling faint, she called on her admirer to remove the plaster, but it stuck fast. Then she shrieked that she was dying.

The young man rushed for the doctor. On the arrival of the physician he looked at the girl, then said calmly: "It's not a doctor you want; it's a mason."

A mason was found and with hammer and chisel began, amid many heartrending appeals from the imprisoned model, to chip her out.

The incident put an end to the student's romance, for the actress is now suing her blundering admirer for damages, and the landlord of the studio has entered claim for compensation for the damage caused on the premises during the extrication of the model.

GET A TEN CENT BOX OF CASCARETS

Insures you for Months Against a Sick Headache, Biliousness, Constipation or a Bad Stomach

Put aside—just once—the Salts, Cathartic Pills, Castor Oils or purgative waters which merely force a passageway through the bowels, but do not thoroughly cleanse, freshen and purify these drainage or alimentary organs, and have no effect whatever upon the liver and stomach.

Keep your inside organs pure and fresh with Cascarets, which thoroughly cleanse the stomach, remove the undigested, sour and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste and poisons in the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never gripe, sicken and cost only 10 cents a box from your druggist. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never have headache, biliousness, coated tongue, indigestion, sour stomach or constipated bowels. Cascarets belong in every household. Children just love to take them.

G. W.'s Orders Still Good.

President George Washington's building regulations for the capital at Washington, including a provision that a party wall might be built partly on the adjoining lot, were upheld by the supreme court. The court ruled, however, that Washington had not intended that a bay window should be classed as a party wall.

Keeps Your Stove "Always Ready for Company"

A bright, clean, glossy stove is the joy and pride of every housekeeper. But it is hard to keep a stove nice and shiny—unless Black Silk Stove Polish is used. Here is the reason: Black Silk Stove Polish sticks right to the iron. It doesn't rub off or dust off. Its shine lasts four times longer than the shine of any other polish. You only need to polish one-fourth as often, yet your stove will be cleaner, brighter and better looking than it has been since you first bought it. Use on your parlor stove, kitchen stove or gas stove. Get a can from your hardware or stove dealer. If you do not find it better than any other stove polish you have ever used before, your dealer is authorized to refund your money. But we feel sure you will agree with the thousands of other up-to-date women who are now using Black Silk Stove Polish and who say it is the "best stove polish ever made."

BLACK SILK STOVE POLISH

LIQUID OR PASTE ONE QUALITY

Be sure to get the genuine. Black SPK Stove Polish costs you no more than the ordinary kind. Keep your grates, registers, fenders and stove pipes bright and free from rusting by using BLACK SILK AIR-DRYING ENAMEL. Brush free with each can of enamel only.

Use BLACK SILK METAL POLISH for silverware, nickel, tinware or brass. It works quickly, easily, and leaves a brilliant surface. It has no equal for use on automobiles.

PARCEL POST

Is here, and with it Comes the Opportunity for the Grower and Consumer to get in Close Touch

The Dispatch will insert a PARCEL POST advertisement on the WANT AD PAGE for the benefit of both grower and consumer.

Here the grower may for a few cents tell of what he has to sell direct to the consumer. Here the consumer can tell of his or her needs and thus get in touch with the grower best fitted to supply them.

PARCEL POST and DISPATCH WANT ADS will help the grower to find a steady market for his products, and help the consumer cut down the high cost of living.

Read Dispatch Want Ads for profit—Use them for results. 1c a word. Minimum Charge 15c. First Insertion. 2c a word for each Subsequent Insertion.
